UNDERSTANDING LEARNING DIFFICULTIES

As a teacher you are likely to find yourself working with some students who have a learning difficulty such as ADHD or dyslexia. It's so important that a professional diagnosis of a specific learning difficulty is undertaken.

Our course will help you recognise, identify and work on your teaching approach to cater for those students to ensure their learning journey is successful.

This course will give you the confidence to support all your students, many of whom may not even realise they have specific learning difficulties. You'll have all the knowledge and understanding to identify signs, symptoms and diagnose your pupils. That's not all, you'll also gain the skills and techniques to adapt your teaching to meet the needs of your learner.

NOT A TEACHER?

You can take this course even if you're not a teacher, no teaching experience is required. This course has been designed for anyone who can understand learning difficulties!

PRO TIP

Having specialist training in Understanding Learning difficulties on your CV/ resume, can help you advance your employment opportunities, enhance your career and make you an overall better teacher.
