Teaching is one of the most in-demand professions right now! By 2030, over 69 million new teachers are going to be needed across the globe, according to a recent study by The UNESCO Institute for Statistics. If you're interested in kickstarting your career in the education industry, there's never been a better time to get started!

Cover Supervisor roles are available in most levels of education, including primary, secondary and college, as well as specialist schools.

As a Cover Supervisor you'll be stepping into the classroom in cases of unplanned absence. Cover Supervisors are particularly important at the moment with the rise in unplanned absence due to COVID-19. Some schools even employ a couple of Cover Supervisors on a full-time basis due to high staff absences.

Being a Cover Supervisor is an extremely rewarding and flexible role, as you aren't as rigidly confined by the school term time calendar. There is also a lot less paperwork, so you'll only be working during school hours, which means you can spend your spare time on your hobbies or enjoying quality time with your family! Many people choose to become a Cover Supervisor as it's a fantastic way of getting experience in the classroom, before progressing to become a fully qualified teacher.

SKILLS YOU'LL NEED TO BECOME A COVER SUPERVISOR

- Basic understanding on the national curriculum
- Strong communication skills
- Able to cover a wide range of lessons and subjects
- Confidence to manage a classroom of students in a bit more detail...

Our Cover Supervisor course will fully equip you with the knowledge and skills you need to cover lessons in the instance of a main teacher absence. Who should take the Cover Supervisor course? Anyone who has tons of passion and energy and wants to work in a rewarding role. One of the main reasons why teachers choose to become a Cover Supervisor is due to the flexibility it provides and the ability to choose your own working hours. Also, unlike those working in a full-time teaching position, Cover Supervisors can often take time off during the school term (hello cheaper holidays!).

Becoming a Cover Supervisor is also a very popular option for returning TEFL teachers who want to get work in the UK, but don't want to become a full-time teacher or teaching assistant. What's the difference between a Cover Supervisor and a Supply teacher?

A Supply Teacher will usually be required to cover long term periods of absence, for example, to cover a teacher who is taking their maternity leave or is on long term sickness leave. A Cover Supervisor is usually required to cover unplanned and short-term absences. This course will equip you with the theory you need to become a fantastic and well-rounded Cover Supervisor, readying you for the classroom!

WHAT CAN I EXPECT?

1. Having this qualification will increase your chances of getting work, and increase your earning potential
2. Popular amongst TEFL teachers returning to the UK, and getting teaching work without jumping through too many hoops
3. Study through our world-class online learning platform, at your own pace
4. Well-structured and easy-to-digest study material
5. Tutor support throughout your studies
6. You will receive a certificate from i-to-i who are accredited by the Open and Distance Learning Quality Council, ODLQC.
